What Is the School Based Program?

KBH’s School Based Program is a clinical service that enhances traditional guidance programs in schools to help reduce barriers to learning.

KBH counselors provide services for children who have been impacted by or are experiencing: domestic violence, divorce, substance use or dependence, anxiety, depression, ADHD, bullying, transgender or sexual identity issues, self-injurious behavior or suicidal thoughts, or other mental health issues or behavioral challenges in the classroom.

Many of these students cannot get services in one of the KBH clinics due to transportation or other barriers so can receive necessary care in the school.

After a diagnosis is made, counseling is provided at the school, consistent with the student’s treatment plan. This may consist of group and individual treatment, consultation with parents and school personnel.
